Invoices will be sent as a PDF file by email. As they have a signature and a stamp in full colour, you need a high-quality printer to print out the original.

Reviewing and Indexing

Reviewing

Each manuscript is reviewed by two anonymous, independent reviewers. The main evaluation criteria are: quality, impact, originality, innovativeness and internationally competitive potential.

Reviewers guarantee that the published manuscripts are of high quality and that the information they contain is correct and up-to-date.

Reviewers recommend that the submitted manuscript is published, rejected or sent back for revision.

The Board of Editors deals with manuscripts only after they have been reviewed.

Editors guarantee that reviewing is complete and the Publisher's rules are observed.

Indexing

All International Scientific Publications journals are indexed by EBSCO Publishing (www.ebscohost.com).

Reviewing: language, formatting, citation and references

Each manuscript is reviewed by a language editor with regards to:

- correct language use;
- conformity with the formatting requirements;
- conformity with the required citing and referencing style.

Formatting. All manuscripts have to be formatted according to the Publisher's requirements. Please refer to ScienceBg Style for guidance. You can ask the Publisher to email you the formatting requirements in a separate file or view them on the journal web site.

References. All manuscripts have to use the citing and referencing style adopted in the journals. Please refer to the Harvard Style for guidance. You can ask the Publisher to email you a copy of the Harvard Style guidelines in a separate file or view them on the journal web site.

Spelling and punctuation. Authors can use either the US or UK variety of English spelling and punctuation. The chosen variety has to be used consistently throughout the manuscript. It is unacceptable to mix different styles, spelling and punctuation.

Revision. When advised by the language editor, the Publisher has the right to send back manuscripts to their authors for correction. The Publisher may also reject manuscripts for publication if the suggested corrections are not implemented.

Publisher

Publisher's rights and obligations:

The Publisher has the responsibility to distribute and disseminate the manuscripts published in the journals. For the purpose, we have developed and employ Internet marketing schemes and cooperation with various partners.

The Publisher has the right to give permission for the re-use and re-publication of manuscripts, if required.

The Publisher decides whether free access shall be permanent, limited or temporarily suspended. The Publisher does not have to inform authors and users in advance when limiting access temporarily.

The Publisher has the right to change the publishing requirements and the conditions for use of the journals on condition that he provides timely and appropriate information about it.

Disclaimer:

The Publisher assumes no responsibility whatsoever, direct or implied, for the contents of the papers as well as for the consequences arising from misinterpretation or unawareness of the requirements for publication.

The Publisher assumes no responsibility whatsoever, direct or implied, for any damages suffered by co-authors from actions or inactions of their corresponding author.

Authors and Copyright

Authors' rights and obligations:

Authors have the right to publish one or two manuscripts in one volume.

Manuscripts have to be formatted according to the Publisher's requirements.

Manuscripts have to be minimum seven and maximum twenty typeset pages long. The publication of longer manuscripts is to be negotiated with the Publisher.

When the manuscript is written by more than one author, a corresponding author is appointed. The corresponding author fills in the publication registration form in his name and is responsible for all subsequent activities required by the Publisher until the publication of the manuscript.

The fact that the corresponding author has sent a completed registration form to the Publisher means that the corresponding author and his or her co-authors agree with the conditions for publication as defined by the Publisher.

Copyright:

Only original academic manuscripts related to the journal topics and unpublished elsewhere are considered for publication in the journals. The manuscripts must not be submitted for publication elsewhere at the time they are sent to the Publisher by their Authors.

The Authors grant the Publisher the right to publish and distribute their articles. The Authors may require and the Publisher may allow subsequent publication of the articles in other collections.

The Authors are obliged to inform the Publisher if during the submission or editing of the manuscript they have offered or are offering it to another Publisher.

It is the Authors' responsibility to obtain permission of the copyright holder for use of any copyright materials to be included within the article. Copies of the relevant permissions must be provided together with the manuscript submitted to the Publisher. The Publisher assumes no responsibility whatsoever, direct or implied, for any damages caused by the Authors to third parties or organisations.

Libraries and Users

Users' rights and obligations:

Users have the right to search, view and download journal volumes, manuscripts or parts of them for personal, non-commercial use and research purposes.

Users do not pay any fees for the above.

Users are not allowed to edit and/or change the contents and format of the volumes and manuscripts.

Libraries

We offer cooperation to all libraries. The Publisher is obliged to provide the volumes of all journals to each partner library annually and gratuitously. The list of partner libraries is published and updated regularly on the Publisher's web site. The Publisher has the right to choose partner libraries.
